What's new in Bomb-Bomb:

Is Dive Disorder-fast moderate or severe diseases that, although not caused by diving, may have some effect on the diver while diving? Diseases that shall be mentioned are: cold and clammy hands & feet, shortness of breath, breathlessness, respiratory disease, neurological disease, central nervous system, sense organs, and circulatory disorders. Any other diseases that the diver may have at the time of diving shall also be noted. I acknowledge that this is a clunky attempt at cracking this subject. The time taken to research this is simply par for the course, as I only mention a few things here. If you feel anything needs to be added or removed, let me know and I'll edit. Disorders of the nervous system Goggles cause headaches, causing diver to have dark fingers due to too much pressure in eyes, optic nerve troubles, 'white dots' in peripheral vision, and problems with depth perception and vision in general; these can lead to challenges and medical issues, including tripping and falling, blackouts, and other vascular or neurological problems Medical professionals regard some facial twitches and headaches as inevitable from time to time in divers, even in those with no history of diving related disorder. Broken bones, loss of limbs or paralysis, seizures, paralysis of the extremities are among neurological disorders caused by diving. Cold sickling Cold sickling is a medical problem experienced at depth, especially at a depth of greater than 30-40 meters, sometimes to 40-50 meters and even to 60 meters or more. It is characterized by a pressure-induced oxygen-deprived blood clotting, which stimulates a sickling of red blood cells, interfering with blood circulation. It can cause pain, neurological problems, and even death. Cold sickling usually occurs in divers with the neurovascular disorders pVD, Steve-O Syndrome, Idiopathic Pulmonary Hereditary Hemorrhage Syndrome, Avascular Necrosis of the Heads of the First Metatarsophalangeal Joints, and hemorrhagic strokes such as Glaucoma and MH. Sharks inflict neurological disorders as well, such as Ichthyopnea, which can lead to Paraplegia Neurological disorders can be even further complicated by veinous hypertension and compression of the veins, with subsequent issues, such as embolism, fat particles, and even fat embolism syndrome in those diving regularly. For various medical reasons and no

"BigBadBrothers 2" is an exciting, tricky game about the abstract search for survival. It is like the game "Where the Wild Things Are" with a difference: It is a sequel of the best selling puzzle game about the lost traveler "Big BadBrothers" made by Loose Cannon Development. The game is about a lost traveler looking for an overnight stay. Unfortunately for you, you find a lonely hostel on the outskirts. Inside the building, you are greeted by a mysterious concierge who offers you a room. But who would have thought that this stranger would turn out to be a creepy clown -psychopath? Your task is to get out of the hostel alive. The clown will be your companion on a wild journey through the forest. Your task is to find a bottle of milk that will help you with your next mission... Good luck! www.bigbadbrothers.com published:13 Jan 2016 views:642229 published:10 Oct 2018 views:476 A wonderful meet-up with some of the most wonderful women in NYC. Our first stop was the rare chance to meet my beautiful wife, Lisa Mendoza, the creator of the blog A Little Lisapretty.com and an expert interviewer of lovely and talented women. Next, we enjoyed a lovely meal at Perilla, a vegan restaurant in the West Village. Then, we rounded out our night with a visit from my oldest friends from St. Louis, the Reynolds. We went out for dinner in Brooklyn, and had such an incredible time. Thank you to my friends for being so welcoming to Lisa and I, and also to our friends for not judging us for being in public together, which is one of the most common myths. My friend Eric Fisher recommended we visit the Brooklyn Flea, a weekend flea market in Coney Island, Brooklyn. And, while I wasn't necessarily looking to make a new friend on my travels, I found my friend Mary Fortier, co-owner of the BrooklynFlea, and we ended up spending our time together. It was lovely. Thank you to Eric and to everyone else who made this night such an incredible success. Hope you enjoyed this video, and if you did, make sure to subscribe to my channel for regular updates. The first season of Big Brother All Stars is now over. There were controversial moments, but which housemate left the biggest mark?
