DreamScapes Dimensions is a free-to-play, medieval fantasy, Massively Multiplayer Online Roleplaying Game. DreamScapes Dimensions is pre-alpha stage of development under the sole control of a single indie developer, and in early access. You can play as an ordinary swordsman, noble knight, priest or mage, or design your own custom class in the form of a female elf. The game is set on the continent of Nuavos, where four tribes dwell, from Nezel, a tribe of wolfin, to the Ics, a tribe of batmankin, to the Godos, a tribe of demonkin. Each tribe has its own gods, cultures, language, laws and customs, which all affect gameplay. Collectively, they are called the Lumeriaeth or Lumerial. InDreamScapes Dimensions you will have to learn to control your warriors, or battle mobs in the blood rage. Defend your house against goblin raiders, craft new equipment, fight in battles, go on adventures, explore the fantasy land of Nuavos, and create your own legend as you grow in power and fight against enemies to defend your territory. The game features a dynamic world with an ever changing landscape, randomly generated maps, procedurally generated dungeons, randomly generated monsters, random encounters in the wild, randomly generated, fully featured dungeons, caves and forests, boss battles, loot with a random chance of drop, and a closed economy. The game contains four professions and up to eight skills for each profession, with additional actions and items available to players. Creative aspects include: Player choice of professions to make your character, a wide variety of items to enhance your character and create your own player house and deeds, procedurally generated, dungeon and dungeon configurations, game play features like turn based or action based combat, and spell caster classes and items. The game uses a token based economic system where players can buy and sell resources and trade for items. DreamScapes Dimensions will include: character customization, user interface, skills, properties, professions, player houses, deeds and deeds, player questing, player battles, player trade, player classes, item and building crafting, loot, player account management, user feedback, tutorials and a mobile application in the future. What's New in DreamScapes Dimensions 1.0.1: World Map Updated the world map with a lot of fine-tuning and a few new features. World Map Changelog: *

What's new in Car Looper:

Club Every fall, public schools across Melbourne prepare for a pedagogically-designed Maths course for students who've been identified as having trouble with the subject. The Maths for Rascals outreach course, which takes place this month, has a simple objective: "To have fun playing, problem-solving, and failing in Maths." A team of trained leaders called Rangers leads two teams of 25 students each, following a year-long "falling in love with Maths" program run at schools across the state with a similar goal. Nonuniform Co-ordinator, Lee Saunders, a former sixth year student of the University of Melbourne, has been helping Math for Rascals since 2011. "We have an ingenious team, with great ideas and fantastic children, who work towards the task of giving each other endless amounts of fun, and lots of learning," he said. The program is heavily based on the Canadian 'Dr Who' program. For example, students gain a sense of ownership over Math problems by coming up with 'cute' names for them. Each session focuses on a specific skill to overcome comprehension or conceptual difficulties in the students in much the same way the Dr Who character solves logic puzzles. Sessions may play out as role-playing games, and quite often the Rangers will dress up as various characters in order to ease themselves into the set situations. Sometimes the group struggle to grasp the concept, but through silliness and general excitement, a solution is found. In the end, Saunders says the goal of the program is to set the students' minds to 0 degrees and erase any idea of Maths as a difficult subject. "By the end of the Maths for Rascals program, the students usually come away with a new sense of confidence in Maths, and so do their teachers. They say that it was the best school-based Maths program they had ever participated in," he explained. Once the students have finished the program, a follow-up survey is conducted to see if they continue to enjoy the class, and if Maths has progressed as a result of the new-found confidence. Saunders added that the Math for Rascals program was first initiated in 2010, and has grown to be an integral part of the Maths department in schools across the city. C

Leifang is a soft-light hero, who does not know the meaning of "hit" or "death", in the game systems called Guilty Gear and its follow-up, Guilty Gear X2. In the Guilty Gear series, the player is an unfortunate hero trapped in the dark world of violence, and it is up to the players to save the world from this pitiful hero! However, in Guilty Gear X2, there is no place to hide. You will finally have to face all of your enemies, and your fatal destiny is to be extinguished. This new game system will draw the attention of fans of the Guilty Gear series, however, in this series, the hero has a new design that is simpler and more focused on the gameplay! ■ Character Background - There are three main schools of martial arts in Leifang's family: Aikido, Karate, and Kotori Kenjutsu. It is said that because all of them are supported by the east wind, the school that opens the gates of paradise has finally been awakened. - Leifang has incredible luck, and it is said that he has the power to create and manipulate positive energy. Leifang always has a positive attitude, and nothing in the world of violence can touch him. His positive energy is amazing, and his luck is strong. - He is called a soft-light hero because he does not feel the influence of the dark world of violence, and he tries to show his gentle skills to the world. However, Leifang has a fatal weakness, and his family is similar. It is said that those who watch Leifang without his shirt will be eaten by his bloodlust. ■ Character Battle System - The battle system of Guilty Gear X2 is a modern classic. In addition to attacking the enemy, the players can also have an in-depth battle against the opponent by using a variety of techniques. - If you use a sub-weapon, the hit points of the enemy are dropped to only a third. - In addition, you can use a variety of sub-weapons to attack the enemy's weak points. - The game also has a variety of special attacks that can only be performed when certain conditions are fulfilled. - If you hit the enemy for five consecutive times, the Yata-Mune system will activate, and the enemy will lose all of his moves for a short time. - A powerful technique called Fatal Crazy Bomb will deal huge damage to the
